

Authorization for Job or Scholarship Reference

NOTE TO STUDENT: Being a reference for a student applying for a job or a scholarship requires that the reference go beyond disclosing what is considered to be “directory information” according to the Family Education Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA). It is typical that a job reference or scholarship application would ask about a student’s grades, attendance patterns, and other attributes that may help them make a decision about hiring or awarding a scholarship. Please think about and discuss this information with the reference and decide whether you wish to release him or her to talk about anything that may be asked, or if you would like to restrict them to certain topics. The more restrictive you have to be; the less likely this person will be a good reference for you.
